I spent the summer semester of 2024 in Düsseldorf as a law student. The first thing I would recommend to everyone is to explore the campus before starting classes, as the complex of university buildings can become a huge maze, a real mini city in the city. HHU, in my opinion, is located in a very beautiful, peaceful, green and park-like area, where it was a pleasure to walk around and get away from the hustle and bustle of the city. The university itself is extremely well equipped, with a main library, cafes and a huge canteen, and I particularly liked the modern building of the law faculty. What I really liked and find a great initiative is the many sports facilities, you can really try almost anything you like, whether it's group training or just using the running track. What made my time here the best was definitely the education and the faculty coordinators I met here. I would like to highlight the work of Holly Wesener, perhaps it is not an exaggeration to say that in my four years at the university, Holly was definitely the best, most helpful and thoughtful instructor. It was a real pleasure to attend her classes as well as those of the other legal teachers, they contributed a lot to the development of our erasmus group. The Erasmus coordinators who worked with us were all very welcoming and supportive, so we were able to spend our time here without any anxiety from the first days, and later on they organised several activities for us. Outside the university, Dusseldorf itself is a very attractive city, with lots of parks, a beautiful riverside and unique buildings. On weekends, the Altstadt is bustling with life, and the size and facilities of the city mean that everything can be bought in the city centre. What's more, with a student ID card for university, students can explore not only Düsseldorf, but the whole of Germany by public transport for free. I think this is a unique opportunity for all students. To sum up, I had a great time in Düsseldorf both professionally and in terms of making friends. I would highly recommend it to everyone.
